Washington DC Carnival 2K9

So how was Washington DC Carnival? It was great. For those that have never been there put in on your list of Trinidad Style Carnivals to check out. We have over 200 photographs posted in our Photo Galley, check it out and send us your comments. The parade route is about 3 miles long and was lined with folks from one end to the next. The band were not as large as I expected, in that category Boston band are about 2 to 3 times larger and has many more King & Queen in their bands. Their route we could definitely use it here in Boston. Their food vendors were closed in (Pay entrance fee), because they usually have several live band performing. I would have opted for the Boston's style where the vendors are open to the public, because in DC everyone wanted something to eat and not all were interested in the live bands after that long wait and walk.

Gov. Patrick speaks with Voters at Unity Sports Club.

On Tuesday, June 30, 2009 approximately 200 individuals listened intently as Governor Duval Patrick spoke about his plans to navigate the state through these tough economic times. The Governor took several questions from the audience, earlier that evening he received gifts from the Caribbean American People Action Committee (CAPAC) members and the children of Branches Steelband.

The evening event was sponsored by CAPAC, which is made up of Clarence Cooper, Shirley Shillingford, Paul Lewis, Carol Leggett and James Baichoo. The music was provided by Branches Steelband, led by Carl Smith. The evening event ended with several individuals having their photograph taken with the governor.

Photographs of the evenings proceedings are available on our website www.BostonCarnivalVillage.com/pg.htm

Tropicalfire.com Celebrates 10th Anniversary.

Tropicalfete.com celebrated their 10th Anniversary on August 26th, 2009. The organization has been educating and entertaining the global community on Caribbean culture happening throughout the world. We here at BostonCarnivalVillage.com wish to congratulate you all on this achievement. God bless.
